B. Financial Need Information

Many Scholarships take into account financial need. An objective measure of need is the Student Aid Index (SAI) as measured by the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) form.

IMPORTANT: You will be expected to provide your family's SAI if you want to be considered for any scholarship that takes into account financial need. We ask you to provide this information now or be prepared to provide the SAI at the time of your interview.

My Student Aid Index (SAI) from FAFSA is: $

E. Essay Section

- Please check this box if you are writing an essay for the Ford Family Scholarship
- Please check this box if you are writing an essay for the Thomas S. and Ellen K. Noneman Scholarship

Noneman Scholarship

If you checked "yes" in section C question #3 in the Unique Scholarship Section, you may qualify for the Thomas S. and Ellen K. Noneman Scholarship. This scholarship is based on financial need and provides for preferential treatment of applicants who are the first in their family to attend college. The Noneman Scholarship requires the submission of an essay.

The essay should address:

- What you expect to achieve during your life
- Your goals and ambitions
- Why you want a college education

The essay should also include:

- Your past accomplishments
- Service to and involvement in the community
- The major influences in your life

Ford Family Scholarship

If you checked "yes" in section C question #4 in the Unique Scholarship Section, you may qualify for the Ford Family Scholarship. This award provides financial assistance to a student or students who have overcome family, financial or social difficulties and wish to further their education.

The essay should address:

- Your family, financial, or social hurdles/difficulties
- How you overcame the difficulties
- What you learned from your trials
